7. Recognition of Unscheduled Public Comment

   (a) Penny Nelson, an Englewood resident, spoke against the Englewood Estates development and potential problems she sees living so close to this development.

   (b) Steve Scott, an Englewood resident, thanked the Mayor and the Council for presenting the opportunity for citizens to speak, for listening, for considering all of the issues and information and for making hard decisions including those for the Englewood Estates development. He thanked them for being reasonable and rational.

   (c) George Stampados, an Englewood resident, spoke for only seven houses at the Englewood Estates development and urged Council to deny the eleven houses.

   (d) Charles Butler, an Englewood resident, took this opportunity to thank various individuals for keeping the citizens informed as to what's going on with City Council. He also expressed his disbelief at the information presented and spoke against the Englewood Estates development.
(e) Martha Griego, an Englewood resident, spoke against the Englewood Estates development and Habitat for Humanity. She considers the development as low income housing. She expressed concern over limited parking.

(f) Laurett Barrentine, an Englewood resident, gave her opinion regarding the conferences between the Mayor, City Manager and City Attorney during the regular City Council meetings and the Open Meetings Law. She stated that the discussion should be made public so that all of Council could hear or they should go into Executive Session.

(g) Andy Blackmun, a representative from Habitat for Humanity, discussed the positive improvements the Englewood Estates project could bring to the City and the minimal negative impact for the neighborhood.
